Out (of) The Wazoo

There is no Grand Wazoo

Good job, guys. You impeached our leader and THIS IS WHY WE CAN'T HAVE NICE THINGS! Well, for the time being, enjoy a photo of our now impeached Wazoo and our Wazoo-Elect drinking from the Dixie Cup itself

Brewsletter Editor Ousted!

Brewsletter Staff

In the sweeping election changes, the Brewsletter Urquell editor was somehow ousted, and he is set to be replaced with someone of the exact same name starting in the new year. Strange, eh?

Zealots Announce Plan to Upgrade Collection of Inflatable Sheep to Inflatable Goats

Brewsletter Staff

With changes to what's hip (and hipster) in Austin these days, the Zealots have launched a capital campaign in hopes of showing up at next year's Lone Star Circuit events with Inflatable Goats that represent the latest in sexual technology. The Brewsletter Urquell staff are committed to staying on top of this story as it blows up.

Dictionary.com announces FR submission as phrase of year

Brewsletter Staff

'Metric Shit Ton' was declared this year's phrase of the year by a leading online dictionary. In addition to inclusion of the phrase itself, two example sentences were included in the entry:

"Wow, that's a metric shit ton of hops you've added throughout the boil, even if it is an IPA."

"We've got a metric shit ton of beer to judge before Dixie Cup and we're way behind pace so we need to pick it up!"

Poll: Election as rigged as Foam Ranger raffles

Meeting's Beers Produce Shitstorm

Crunk, because who else would report on this?

Citing one of the better mix-ups of recent memory (ie, the last month and a half), the Grand Wazoo (look, we forgot which one we talked to) said the Secondary at the last meeting misunderstood directives from the club members targeted to the raffle (which really sucked, by the way). On the command "SHAKE IT UP!" the secondary let loose and gently shook teach and every bottle to better distribute the sediment in each bottle ensuring every pour would contain tasty yeasties. Just be glad it wasn't done on Belgian night!
